

IFSTAL

Innovative Food Systems Teaching And Learning

12 July 2018

Oxford Town Hall

A showcase event to share innovative teaching and learning approaches to tackle food system challenges.

Speakers include:

- John Ingram, ECI
- Alan Hayes, IGD
- Angela Wright, Compassion in World Farming
- Helen Munday, FDF
- Tim Lang, City, University of London
- Lucy Foster, Defra
- Matt Jennings, Office for Students

Who should attend?

- Higher education under- and post-graduate course directors, educational technologists, careers officers, education policy staff;
- Food industry – HR managers (CPD), strategy and policy staff;
- NGOs – HR managers (CPD), policy and strategy staff;
- Government departments – policy and strategy staff;
- Funders;
- Professional and trade bodies; and
- IFSTAL alumni

Fee to attend: £75

Cost includes coffee on arrival, lunch and tea.

Food for thought

Collaborative teaching and learning for the workplace

IFSTAL is unique. It brings together leading academic minds in food systems thinking with the workplace to create an inter-disciplinary, workplace-orientated model to build the community of future researchers, practitioners, campaigners and advocates for change: 'food system analysts'.

This showcase event will be an opportunity to share and discuss experiences of a multi-institution collaboration for interdisciplinary teaching and learning. With a focus on the food system, it will highlight IFSTAL activities over the past 3 years as a case study by:

- Explaining the motivation for the programme – the challenges of the global food system now and in the future and need to skill up the workforce;
- Reviewing the method and learning in the programme – the development of the programme, innovative approaches to student engagement, use of the Virtual Learning Environment, and building workplace contacts;
- Demonstrating workplace pull and the value of our teaching and learning method to the workplace;
- Reflecting on the value to students and to enhance employability for students in a competitive job market;
- Celebrating the collaborative approach provided by HEFCE (now the Office for Students), partner institutions and the workplace.

Book a place online at: www.ifstal.ac.uk

